Now With F.M.L.

Cameron Parent - Teachers Association went on record Thursday night favoring the $885,000 rerun for a CISD bond proposal.

The unanimous vote followed an explanation of needs vs. reduction of total proposal by Calvin Cobb, president of the CISD school board.

Featured speaker was Rep. Dan Kubiak, who discussed legislation pending before the Texas House education committee, which he chairs. He was introduced by P-TA co-president, Bill McCutcheon.

We are, of course, in accord with this first group endorsement of the bond proposal, some $350,000 less than the October, 1972, proposal for $1,250,000 plus which voters turned away, about 55 to 45 percent.

It appears to us this is an interim bond proposal, but one which should be approved. As Kubiak noted, our greatest commodity is kids.

When everyone knows that, it gives pause to wonder at how school bond issues sometime go.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Thanks for the interest in the front improvements underway here. A touch of paint here, some solar screen there, and voila, I don't recognize the place either.

Nothing like showing people what all the talk is about. We're happy to join the numerous other downtown enterprises making Cameron the attractive place it is becoming in the 1970s.

Groundhog Day

If the ground-hog legend holds true, Central Texas is in for another six weeks of winter weather.

Ground hog day, Friday, was warm and sunny insuring that the ground hog could emerge from his hibernating hole in the ground almost anytime of day and see the shadow that legend says frightens him into retiring "down-under" for another six weeks.

If winter remains another six weeks it will be a continuation of an unusually cold, wet beginning for 1973. Total rainfall in Cameron for January was 5.78 including the .47 of an inch that fell in a brief but heavy rain storm on January 31.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN and James Michalka of Rt. 1 Cameron buys 1973 license plates from Mrs. John Eanes at the Milam County tax office. Business there has been brisk since opening day Thursday, as countians buy early to beat the rush. New plates must be displayed on vehicles by April 1.

MOD Drive Continues In County

Twenty-five marchers met at the First National Bank conference room on January 30 to solicit funds for the 1973 March of Dimes, according to Mrs. Florence Meissner, chairman for the north Milam MOD and coordinator for TAP.

Collections to date from the Mothers March in Cameron are $361.82 and $52 from the community of Burlington.

The business drive for Cameron and the northern part of Milam County will take place during the week of February 12 and will continue until workers have completed their designated assignments.

The MOD film, "American Pheonomenon" is being shown in Milam County schools and is available for public use through churches and clubs and has been used by the Lions Club and Rotary Club. Anyone desiring to show the film, which includes a completely prepared program, may contact Mrs. Meissner at 697-6115.

Out of funds collected approximately one-third goes to the National Foundation for research, one-third stays in the state for further research and helps to equip five centers, Houston, Galveston, Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio, and the other one-third stays in the county.

Out of county funds, a portion is used to assist families with birth defect children and the other money is held in reserve for emergency type assistance and would be used in case of an epidemic or similar situation.

Mrs. Meissner noted that it would be only a matter of hours until a critically ill child could be placed in one of the five centers and treatment started.

"The cooperation of citizens of Cameron and surrounding communities has been tremendous," she said, "and this continued interest will be appreciated through the remainder of the MOD drive."

Area Roundup

Freedom Fountain Nearly Finished

WACO

Dedication ceremonies for the Freedom Fountain are set tentatively for early April, and Central Texas prisoners of the Vietnam war will be invited to attend as honored guests. The idea for a Freedom Fountain was conceived by a group of Wacoans while on a trip to Paris in 1971 to petition the North Vietnamese peace delegation for release or better treatment of U. S. prisoners of war. A fund raising drive for the fountain was conducted after they returned.

Local Man Injured At Alcoa

ROCKDALE

Monroe Lucko of Cameron, an Alcoa employee, was hospitalized last Friday with burns sustained in an industrial accident at mid-morning in the potlining department at the local aluminum smelter. Lucko, a 15-year Alcoan, was transferred to a Cameron hospital. He sustained burns, mostly first and second-degree, on the neck, chest, right forearm and face. The accident occurred in the potlinging department and involved molten metal.

Speedgun Working Fine

GEORGETOWN

Georgetown Police Department's new radar device, Speedgun, is working just fine. It is credited by the chief, John Shearin, for cutting down accidents in the city by at least 30 percent. Some violations have been ticketed, but on the most part, he said, the drivers have just been inspired to slow down.

Funds Assured For Somerville

CALDWELL

President Nixon asked Congress for $64,571,000 in fiscal 1974 to spend on putting Texas rivers to work, improving navigation and protecting against hurricans and floods. Among the requests for funds to be used in Texas was $623,000 for the operation and maintenance of Lake Somerville. The figures are in the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers budget request submitted to Congress for public works projects.

Council Calls Election

HEARNE

The Hearne city council called an election for April 3 for the purpose of electing a mayor, two councilmen and a city attorney. Mayor Jake Abrams and councilman Tommy Maysfield announced that they will seek re-election. Also announcing for re-election were City Attorney Bill Palmos and councilman Julian Kwasnica.

Houston Show officials say the 1973 entry figures prove this is the largest livestock show in the world. Even with the recent expansion, the Livestock Exposition Building will be bulging at the seams with classes provided for 10 beef breeds, 5 dairy breeds, 6 swine breeds, 11 sheep breeds, 6 horse breeds, 5 rabbit breeds, 22 poultry breeds and Angora goats.

New Amtrak Train Stopping At Milano

Amtrak's sleek red, silver and blue diesel engine train is now streaking through Cameron on a six-day schedule carrying passengers north to Chicago and south to Laredo. Although the train will not stop in Cameron as previously announced by Amtrak, passengers can board in Milano where the train stops to change crews.

Amtrak, the first passenger train to serve Milam County in several years, will take on passengers at Milano going south at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Northbound trains will arrive in Milano at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Friday and Sunday.

The luxury passenger train will connect with the National Railways of Mexico train, the Aztec Eagle, at Laredo for daily service to Mexico City.

Connection between the U.S. and Mexican trains at Laredo will be made by chartered buses from Laredo across the border to Nuevo Laredo. The Aztec Eagle will stop at Monterrey and San Luis Potosi enroute to Mexico City.

Stops in Texas on the Amtrak line will be Ft. Worth, McGregor, Temple, Milano, Austin, San Antonio and Laredo.

Amtrak passenger service got its start through a $267 million federal grant and $100 million in guaranteed loans. It presently operates 1,400 trains a week over about 22,000 miles of track reaching 350 cities and towns.

Officials at the Milano depot said they did not handle tickets for the Amtrak train, however tickets may be purchased on board. Round-trip passage from Ft. Worth to Laredo is $30.

Professor Offers Theory Of Unitrons To Explain Beginning Of Universe

By Peter Keirnan

NEW YORK

The primal stuff from which the universe was born is postulated by a Columbia University professor in a theory which is fast attracting increasing attention from experts around the world.

"It explains so much," says Prof. Lloyd Motz, speaking of his particles, which he calls "unitons."

Motz believes unitons existed before, and were in fact responsible for, the "big bang" theory, the universe was formed as the result of a tremendous explosion of energy and is still expanding from the point at which this cataclysmic explosion took place.

Motz believes the "big bang" occurred when unitons, extremely small but extremely dense particles, hurtled together, resulting in the release of massive amounts of energy -- the "beginning."

"But, of course, not all of the matter was used up," Motz explains. In this theory, rare and elusive unitons remained scattered throughout the universe -- from the planet earth and its sun to the far reaches of the distant galaxies.

These leftover unitons, he believes, could explain such mysteries as the source of powerful gravity waves which stream out from the center of our own Milky Way galaxy; or the energy released by quasars, near galactic - sized luminous objects which emit more energy than, theoretically, they should.

The unitons also play a role in the slowing down of the expansion of the universe. Astronomers believe that at some stage in the far distant future, the universe will cease to expand and will begin to contract.

According to Motz, unitons, attracted by the mass of the bodies in the galaxy, are streaming in from the outer reaches to the center, from where the powerful gravitiation waves originate.

It would take the energy of 1,000 suns a year colliding to produce the kind of gravitational waves which have been observed, Motz says. Using up mass at this rate would mean a disruption in the mechanics of galactic activity.

However, if it is assumed that unitons stream into the center of the galaxy, the resultant mass would account for the gravity waves.

On an inter-galactic scale, the mass formed by inward-streaming unitons could be exerting the gravitational pull which is slowing down the rate at which the universe is expanding.

Motz postulates that unitons exist in the universe in a ratio of about one uniton to 100,000 trillion elementary proton particles.

It is their extreme mass that makes unitons a force to be reckoned with as man unravels the dynamics of the incredibly complex mechanism that is the universe.

"The question is how compressed things can become," Motz says. "Unitons are so compressed that they are their own black hole."

As now understood, black holes exist in space as incredibly compacted matter likened to a sun which is so dense that its light cannot escape because of the power of its gravitational pull.

Thus, despite the size and scarcity of unitons, Motz sees them as the force which may even hold the galaxies together in clusters.

New Kind Of Peace...

This whole condition of peace after the Vietnam truce is weird.

No celebrations, no jubil - ation, no parades. Only, only relief.

The difference between "police actions," what they called Korea, and an undeclared war, which is our part of Vietnam, may be seen in how the POWs come home.

There was elation at the American POWs release. Only about 21 remained in North Korea to join communism.

This time, there is little elation, except of course among families and friends. Again, only relief. The American POWs had been part of the Cong ploy at the Paris Peace Talks. After six or seven years, no one wastes time thinking of celebration. In some cases, they are not sure they will even know the men coming back from North Viet confinement.

It is all wearying. They continue to fight in the numerous pockets, the Cong and South Viets. We are getting out. One peace keeping contingent from Canada says they want better ground rules if they are to referee the truce. Henry Kissinger won't comment on what the U. S. will do if the shooting continues at length.

No celebrations here and no ceasefire there, only general abatement of European-style groundwar. It is weird, this new kind of peace, and very oriental.

Sure Thing Surer?

The lid was lifted, as opposed to closed, on the Watergate incident when a federal court jury convicted G. Gordon Liddy and James W. McCord, Jr. on a total of 14 counts, maximizing in some 80 years of potential jail time.

Other incidents of this ilk await investigation in a less political climate in the Senate and perhaps other congressional queries.

Five other defendants in the case have entered pleas of guilty and await sentencing.

It was all very political for the GOP. Bugging telephones, allusions to raiding Democratic headquarters, fund-raising gambols among other adventures keep testimony interesting in these cases.

Question is why such machinations when the Republican Party clearly had the advantage after George McGovern's nomination in Miami? The Tom Eagleton affair destroyed any McGovern hopes as the early fall polls reflected and the November vote turned out.

These developments fail to make a sure thing surer.

Jamaica Tries Housing

By Calvin Bowen
KINGSTON

Jamaica embarks this year on a pioneering low-cost housing scheme which could turn out to be a model to help solve the widespread problem of urban housing in other parts of the world.

The project is designed to meet the housing needs of people from the lowest rungs of the social and economic ladder and to provide them with employment.

Prospective householders will be able to work during the construction phase of the project, as the government puts in the basic infrastructure. They will thus be able to earn "credits" to be used towards down payments on their houses.

Cost of the scheme to be undertaken with help from the World Bank, is estimated at $19 million.

The man in charge of the project, Kingsley Robotham, an architect in the Ministry of Housing, describes the scheme as a community development project in which various elements---including the provision of housing, social amenities, training in skills and the establishment of small industries--are to be integrated.

What was aimed at, he said, was the development of a viable community in which the occupiers of the houses would be enabled to secure employment and improve their economic and social position.

One aspect of the scheme makes provision for house-owners to buy building materials at special low prices, so they can improve and expand their homes in time.

A house will start as an all-purpose "core" unit, consisting of one room for sleeping and dining with kitchen and toilet facilities, which can be improved from time to time.

The estimated cost of one "core" unit is about $1,900 dollars. The project is intended for people with annual income of 1,500 dollars, and less, down to those with little or no income at all.

Five sites--four in Kingston and one in the former capital, Spanish Town, 12 miles west of Kingston--have been selected for the project, which is expected to start next September.

Robotham points out that the goal is not just the creation of a low-cost housing scheme that could in time degenerate into a slum, but the establishment of a nucleus community which could grow and develop.

The World Bank has agreed to participate in the project and is expected to put up about $6.25 million--one third of the estimated cost.

William McCulloch, leader of a three-man World Bank team which came to Jamaica to help with the project, told a press conference that urban housing was a worldwide problem in which the bank was taking special interest.

Legislature Sweeps Clouds With Open Meetings Law

By Bill Boykin

The Texas Legislature swept away some of the clouds last week and made important moves toward "government in the sunshine."

In addition to passing the revised "open meetings" law--patterned after Florida's famous "sunshine law" House committees approved a new "open records" law for Texas and placed on the House calendar a "free flow of information" bill.

Changes in the Texas open meetings law will allow the public and press to be informed of all "quorum" meetings of public bodies. It was approved 132 to 13 by the House of Representatives and moved over to the Senate Jurisprudence Committee.

Closed meetings will be held to a minumum under the exemptions in the nev law. It was authored by Rep. Carl Parker of Port Arthur and submitted as a part of House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.'s "reform package."

A marathon five-hour hearing by the House Judiciary Committee--chaired by Rep. DeWitt Hale--was held on the "free flow of information" measure. This proposal is H. B. 10, sponsored by Rep. Dave Allred of Wichita Falls.

It grants a "news sorce" confidential privilege, and allows Texas journalists to get more information about governmental, law enforcement and other matters important to the public.

The House Judiciary Committee approved the bill 16 to 4 and sent it to the House floor for debate this week.

H. B. 6, the "open records" measure, will allow the public and press access to most all records of government, city, and county and state, that are not closed by state statute. A few other restrictions were placed on the bill-sponsored by Rep. Lane Denton of Waco.

All of these "government in the sunshine" measures follow the pattern of new House rules which open committee meetings, and follow the trend toward "openness."

CORRECTION

The January 31st TPA Legislative Bulletin states that House Bill 10--the "free flow of information" bill--went to a House subcommittee. The bill did not go to s subcommittee, but was passed out by a vote of 16-4 and will be on the House calendar this week of February 5-10.

This is the bill that grants a privilege to a newsman's source of news.

WATCHDOG PROPOSED

Legislators from Houston and Fort Worth have introduced legislation proposing to create the office of "Ombudsman" in the State Government in Texas.

The idea has been put before the legislature in previous sessions only to receive a cold shoulder. The Ombudsman would be an independent and politically neutral office with the sole duty of investigating and recommending action on citizen complaints about state government administration, under the proposed legislation.

The two sponsors, Rep. Hawkins Menefee of Houston and David Finney of Fort Worth, said the Ombudsman would be able to protect individual citizens by giving them recourse for their grievances against unfair or abusive administrative practices.

The Ombudsman, however, would have only the power to criticize and publicize, but now reverse, undesirable administrative actions.

PRAY QUIETLY PLEASE

Sen. Walter Mengden, Republican state senator from Houston, has dropped a bill in the legislative hopper to allow local school boards to establish periods of silent prayer or meditation at the beginning of each school day.

The U. S. Supreme Court says a school district cannot dictate to a class of students the wording of a daily prayer.

Tax Tip For Students

Working students got word today on how to fulfill their tax obligations to Uncle Sam from A. P. Andrews, administrative officer, Internal Revenue Service, Temple Texas.

1 A single student earning $2,050 or more during 1972 must file an income tax return, even if he is claimed as a dependent by his parents.

2. Single students with incomes of less than $2,050 during '72 and who have had income tax withheld, should file a return to get these taxes refunded.

3. A single student filing a return should claim one exemption for himself, even if he is also claimed as a dependent by his parents.

4. In order for parents to claim married students as dependents, separate returns must be filed by the students if a return is required. An exemption for a married dependent can still be claimed if neither the dependent nor his spouse is required to file a return, but they file a joint returr to claim a refund of tax withheld.

'Godspell' To Open At Waco Hall

WACO

Mail orders are now being accepted for "Godspell," the musical adaptation of the Gospel According to St. Matthew, which will be presented Feb. 15 at Baylor University.

Tickets are $4, $5, and $6 for the 8 p.m. performance in Waco Hall on the Baylor campus.

Ticket requests should include a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with check or money order for the exact amount made payable to "Godspell." Requests should be sent to Baylor Student Union, Central Ticket Office, Baylor University, Waco, Texas 76703.

"Godspell," which is the archaic form of the word gospel, offers theater goers a motif of spiritual awakening, a hope for man, rather than communal life on the streets. It is drawn from the spirit of Christ and his teachings rather than from the Bible in its literal sense.

Winner of last year's Dineen Award by the National Theatre Arts Conference, "Godspell," produced by Edgar Lansbury, Stuart Duncan and Joseph Beruh, has received four Drama Desk Awards and several spots in Variety's Critics Poll.

Not since "Hair" has a young rock musical taken over the hearts of so many. "Godspell" has quietly overtaken its more sensationalized comparison "Jesus Christ Superstar," drawing more audiences in more cities around the world.

Kubiak Offers Proposal For Cooperative Buying

Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale Thursday introduced a proposal to let local governments and school districts take advantage of savings through cooperative purchasing by the State Board of Control.

The measure, House Bill 261, is permissive and would cover both home rule and general law cities, public school and junior college districts, special districts and counties.

The bill would permit these local governments to contract with the Board of Control for extension of State contract prices to local governments and would let the Board of Control solicit bids for local governments.

Also under Kubiak's proposal two or more local government units could make joint purchases through the Board of Control.

"Local governments could save thousands of dollars annually on purchasing supplies by going through the Board of Control," Kubiak said.

"But since my bill is permissive, local governments would still be free to buy-at-home' when they can get needed goods and services at the right price," Kubiak said.

Kubiak said the proposal had been recommended to him by several county and local officials in his Central Texas district.

Patients Are Starving At Moscow Skin Clinic

By Chris Catlin

MOSCOW

Patients are starving at the skin clinic of a Moscow medical institute, and all in the cause of good health.

For as long as 15 days, doctors at the clinic prescribe a diet of nothing but mineral water for patients suffering from eczema, chronic nettle rash and other skin ailments.

The result, according to the newspaper Leninskoye Znamya, is that people who may have suffered for many years from acute skin complaints leave the clinic healthy and smooth-skinned.

Though some might call it a "kill or cure" method, the so called hunger cure is practiced in the Soviet Union for a wide variety of complaints from arthritis and hardening of the arteries to nervous disorders.

The first hunger cure center was opened some time ago at the dermatology clinic of Moscow's Medical Institute Number One, and Leninskoe Znamya reported it was now operating successfully.

A senior specialist there, Prof. Robert Babayants, was asked how the treatment is applied and why, in his opinion, it is effective.

"There is no such thing as skin disease. There are only the external manifestations of internal disorders," he claimed.

To correct them, it was essential to bring the patients metabolism -- the chemical processes of the body--back to normal.

"And in such cases nothing works better than hunger, he said. For 10 to 12 sometimes 13 days, the patients are given nothing except "borzhomi" (A soviet mineral water), the specialist explained.

During this period the body burns up excessive fats and carbohydrates, together with what Babayants calls "waste matter."

After four or five days the condition of the patient generally comes to a head, with the symptoms of the skin ailment becoming more pronounced. The more they do so, according to Babayants, the better the cure.

In the second five-day period, patients are said to become more accustomed to their new way of life and by the end of the fast they adapt entirely to a state of hunger.

Doctors follow this up by prescribing a further 10 to 15 days on a diet of fruit juice and porridge.

Apart from curing the original ailment, the treatment has brought some remarkable side effects. Babayants told of cases where a patients' memory had improved and abnormal pressure returned to normal.

Leninskoe Zanmya said one patient, treated for an allergy that was causing progressive blindness, found the hunger treatment cured not only the original complaint but also restored his eyesight.

Obesity is obviously another disorder for which doctors suggest the hunger cure, and the patients are said to lose between 15 and 20 per cent of their body weight by the end of it.

One doctor was quoted in the press as saying he had also found it particularly effective against hypochondria.

But the treatment is not without its dangers, and should be only used if a doctor, after considering the patients' case history, decides it is safe to do so.

Even then, patients are kept under close observation and must stick to a special diet recommended by the clinic once they return home.

Self-Administered cures are not encouraged. One Muscovite at least is known to have taken the "mineral water only" idea to heart and decided to try it at home.

The man continued working and after several days collapses as he was leaving his apartment. Luckily, doctors managed to revive him from a state of clinical death and he eventually recovered.

While ruefully acknowledging his mistake, he nonetheless claims the hunger cure did him good in the long run.

Designer Unveils Engine

By John Roubicke

AUSTRALIA

An Australian designer will unveil details of a new orbital engine which could mark the beginning of a revolution in the automobile industry.

Working in a dusty workshop in suburban Perth, designer Ralph Sarich and a four man team have developed an engine which they believe will make the orthodox reciprocating petrol engine obsolete.

If the engine works, and is as simple, light and powerful as the claims made for it suggest, it could transform the entire automotive industry.

So far, details of the engine have been kept a close secret while massive bids for it were made by a number of international car companies.

But it is known that the engine is no larger than a spare tire and weighs about 87 pounds without ignition equipment and other accessories.

The current prototype is 17 inches in diameter and has a depth of just over nine inches.

It is designed to develop a surprising 150 to 200 horsepower-more than enough to power the average family car.

Sarichs' initial schedule called for the engine to be operating in a car by the end of 1972 but he was delayed by technical problems.

His deadline now calls for a motor vehicle, equipped with a Sarich orbital engine, to be on the road by June of this year.

"I find I work far better if I commit myself to some date," he says. "It gives me that extra incentive I need to drive myself most fully."

One thing Sarich is adamant about is that his invention will remain in Australian hands. With this in mind, he has entered into a partnership with Australias' largest company, Broken Hill Proprietart (B. H. P.) -- To provide his financing.

"I'm determined to keep the engine in Australian hands," he says. "I don't want it slipping away like other local inventions."

B. H. P. plans to announce in December for a move to larger quarters with a well equipped workshop.

This is expected to happen next month and will be the first brush with affluence for the Sarich group which so far has worked in a single dusty workshop with a tiny adjoining office.

Although information on just how the engine works is still classified, many who know the details describe it as "fantastic."

1973 Almanac Forecast Drought To Follow Snow

By Paul Sampson
National Geographic News

Abe Weatherwise, the mythical forecaster for The Old Farmer's Almanac, fears the worst for 1973.

The sage predicts more than 200 inches of snow for the New England mountain areas by the end of winter. He also calls for spring floods in the Mississippi River valleys, the hottest summer in years east of the Rockies, and the beginnings of a severe drought in the fall.

Abe's predictions carry on a centuries - old tradition of almanacs, the National Geographic Society says. In the 16th century, many tracts forecast the weather a year in advance by drawing upon the latest intelligence from stargazers.

Predicted Catastrophes

Almanacs flourished as printing spread. Editors found that sales soared when they spiced up their calendars and tables with predictions. They not only predicted the daily weather but such catastrophes as fires, famine, plague, and "sodaine tumultes."

The stars foretold a catastrophic flood for February 1524, and scores of almanacs warned of a universal deluge. Thousands of Europeans fled their homes and took refuge on hilltops for the entire month. Rainfall was normal, but the astrologers were not chastened.

Almanac editors faced occupational hazards. They could be burned at the stake as sorcerers if they were right too often, or lose their professional reputation if they were frequently wrong. So they cloaked their calamitous portents in ambiguous language.

A 1580 almanac predicted: "The sommer and Autumne shall sometyme encline unto driness, sometyme unto moysture: so the winter shall be partlye rough and partlye midle." Of, a nice day if it doesn't rain.

Francois Rabelais, the French satirist, mocked such forecasts by writing: "This year the blind will see only a very little; the deaf will not hear very well; the dumb will not have much to say; the rich will fare rather better than the poor."

Sometimes, however, a creative almanac editor stumbled onto a correct prediction. In 1650, William Lilly drew pictures of a crowded cemetery and a great city on fire to decorate his almanac. Sixteen years later, loyal readers declared Lilly had foreseen the great plague and fire of London.

Prophecy Shakes Shoemaker

John Partridge, an English shoemaker who audaciously styled himself Physician to the King, filled his almanac with portentous prophecies. Annoyed by Partridge's pretensions, the acidulous Jonathan Swift predicted that on Marcy 29, 1708, the shoemaker - astrologer would die of a "raging fever."

The frightened Partridge took to his bed two days before that date. Eventually he got up and announced that he was alive, only to find that he had become a laughing stock.

Patrick Murphy's Weather Almanac for 1838 said flatly that January 20 would be the coldest day of the winter. It turned out to be the coldest day England had suffered in generations, and the 1837-38 season was long known as Murphy's Winter.

Abe Weatherwise predicted rain, snow, and hail for July 13, 1816, and it did rain, snow, and hail -- in that order. Actually Abe couldn't claim all the credit -- a prank-playing typesetter had inserted the forecast as a joke.

Kubiak Offers Bill To Aid Rural Areas

AUSTIN

Legislation to let county commissioners courts regulate all public utilities in unincorporated areas was introduced in the House Thursday by Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale.

"This bill would correct multitudes of problems in rural areas," Kubiak said. He noted that "people who live in cities and towns can take their problems to the city council--but rural residents have no place to seek relief."

"And there are plenty of problems," Kubiak said. He said he introduced the proposal, House Bill 198, after hearing of utility problems from county officials.

The bill would cover both privately-owned utility companies and such governmental subdivisions as cities, river authorities and special districts who extend utility service into unincorporated areas.

The proposal would give the commissioners courts authority to grant franchises for utility service and to regulate rates.

Clerks Conference Set At Texas A&M

Claude Williams of Dallas, chief justice of the Court of Civil Appeals for the Fifth Supreme Judicial District of Texas, will be one of the featured speakers at the first annual County and District Clerks Conference at Texas A&M University, Feb. 14-15.

Williams will address the conference on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 14, and will discuss "The Clerk's Role in the Civil Appeal."

More than 300 county and district clerks and their deputies from across the state are expected to attend, according to Charles E. Lawrence, county officials program specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extention Service and conference chairman.

Theme of the event will be "The Clerk at Work in the 70's."

Baylor Enrolls 814 In Spring Semester

Enrollment figures at Mary Hardin-Baylor College have taken a most unusual turn this spring, as, for the first time in memory there are more spring semester students than there were in the fall semester.

Though the college has verifying records only back to 1964, no one remembers another time when the national trend of a drop from fall enrollment to spring was not true at MH-B, too.

On campus enrollment, including night classes, was 814 at the close of registration Monday. Fall, 1972, on-campus enrollment was 805. Enrollment figures are not yet available from extension classes at Central Texas College and Fort Hood, nor from consortuim classes at Central Texas College and Temple Junior College.

ASCS Notes

With sign-up in the 1973 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs due to open in less than a week, Milam County producers have many decisions to make.

In these coming weeks, each producer with a feed grain base or wheat or cotton allotment must make his individual decisions on whether to participate in the programs, and, if so, what plans to choose among those that are offered.

Sign-up for the 1973 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs is scheduled Feb. 5 through March 16 at the County ASCS Office.

Participants in the feed grain set-aside program will decide whether to sign up for the 30 percent plan or the 15 percent plan. Wheat producers must determine whether they want additional set-aside beyond that required for participation.

Those are the main program decisions a farmer will make, once he decides to be in one or more of the programs, but his entire farm operating plan for the year is tied in with his decisions on farm program participation.

Before he signs up, he will want to know what land he is going to set aside if he's in the feed grain or wheat programs, and he will have decided what crops he's going for -- whether he will substitute crops, whether he will grow an alternate crop on his set-aside land and take a payment reduction.

Substitution is continued in the 1973 farm programs. Substitution means a producer may choose among the following crops--corn, grain sorghum, barley, wheat, soybeans -- and still preserve his farm's base or allotment record, earn program payments, and be eligible for loans so long as he stays within other program requirements.

Alternate crops permitted on set-aside land, if a producer accepts a reduction in program payment, include sunflower, safflower, sesame, guar, mustard seed, castor beans, crambe, and plantage ovato.

These and other details of the 1973 programs for feed grains, wheat, and cotton will be available to producers through leaflets and explanations offered by the ASCS county office before sign-up begins and throughout the rest of the year.
